Maria Garcia, right, attended the event with her 3-year-old grandson Noe Rodriguez and her sister Luisa Gonzalez. Garcia says she has attended for many years and looks forward to attending H-E-B's Feast of Sharing in the future.

An average Feast of Sharing dinner serves

- 3,000 pounds of sliced turkey
- 2,500 pounds of cornbread dressing
- 750 pumpkin pies
- 380 gallons of mashed potatoes
- 140 gallons of turkey gravy

Selena tribute singer released after Harlingen arrest

MCALLEN — Karol Posadas, singer of the Selena tribute band Anything for Salinas, has been released from federal custody after being held in an ICE detention facility following her arrest while attempting to board a flight Saturday, Nov. 2, at Valley International Airport, according to a GoFundMe page.

Adelina A. Pruneda, spokeswoman for Immigration and

Posadas

Customs Enforcement, confirmed Friday afternoon that U.S. Customs and Border Protection had arrested Posadas at the Harlingen airport.

However, Pruneda issued a statement just before 7 p.m. confirming that Posadas has now been released by ICE "on an order of supervision." "Her immigration proceedings are ongoing," Pruneda said in the statement.

Posadas is in the country under the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program, having been brought to the

Trial date set for school trustee

DA to request Vargas' temporary removal

By FERNANDO DEL VALLE
 Staff Writer

BROWNSVILLE — A judge yesterday set an April 13 trial to determine whether San Benito school board President Michael Vargas should be removed from office on the grounds of intoxication.

Meanwhile, Assistant District Attorney Edward Sandoval said he would request Vargas be temporarily removed from office.

In a hearing in 107th state District Court, visiting Judge Manuel Bañales set the court's announcements for April 3.

The case stems from residents' petition calling for Vargas' removal as a result of his July 5 arrest on a driving while intoxicated charge.

Under Texas Government Code 87.015, the rarely applied law allows residents to petition the court to remove elected officials from office on such grounds as intoxication.

On Oct. 2, residents Janie Lopez, Rosalinda Garcia, Ramon Santos and Oscar Medrano, a former school board member, filed the petition.

Lopez, the district's former Guidance and Counseling coordinator who spearheaded the petition drive, said Vargas' arrest sends the wrong message to students.

"We need a strong role model for our kids," Lopez said after the hearing. "If Vargas is displaying behavior that goes against laws and ethics, he's not meeting the district's gold standard. Vargas also makes decisions that affect employees' hiring and terminations. The employees need to know the district is going to be fair."

Lopez said she was counting on an earlier trial date.

"I'm not happy about the length of time it's going to take," she said, referring to the April 13 trial date. "That's almost at the end of the school year. I respect what the law says and I respect the process but it seems like an eternity."

Helping those in need

La Posada Providencia celebrates 30 years of service

By ALANA HERNANDEZ
 Staff Writer

SAN BENITO — Year after year, this local safe haven has been welcoming those in crisis who have been fleeing their countries in hope of finding a better life.

This week, the organization celebrated a milestone in the impact they've made for hundreds of people.

With local, county and state officials in attendance, La Posada Providencia hosted a Proclamation Ceremony yesterday morning in honor of the ministry's 30 years of service.

The San Benito-based ministry provides immigrants and asylum seekers with shelter, food, local transportation and supportive services such as ESL lessons and assistance to help navigate the immigration process and resettlement.

Beginning Dec. 5, 1989, the ministry welcomed two refugees from Central America.

Years later, La Posada Providencia grew to help more than 10,000 people from 86 countries.

Whistleblower disputes boil over in impeachment interview

By MATTHEW DALY
The Associated Press

SUSAN WALSH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

House Intelligence Committee Chairman Adam Schiff, D-Calif., talks with reporters on Capitol Hill in Washington, Wednesday, Nov. 6, 2019, about the House impeachment inquiry.

WASHINGTON — Transcripts released Friday in the impeachment inquiry show Republicans and Democrats repeatedly skirmishing over GOP questions that appeared aimed at drawing out the identity of the whistleblower who filed the initial complaint against President Donald Trump. Trump himself speculated that the whistleblower “should be sued. And maybe for treason.”

During questioning last month of Lt. Col. Alexander Vindman, a top Trump national security adviser, Republicans repeatedly asked questions that could reveal the whistleblower’s identity — leading to sharp exchanges with Democrats and Vindman’s lawyer. The chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, Rep. Adam Schiff, D-Calif., finally intervened, saying: “It is the ruling of the chair that the witness shall not identify employees, detailees or contractors of the intelligence agency, or provide information that may lead to the revelation of the identity of the whistleblower, someone whose life has been put at risk.”

Democrats “are determined to protect the right of that whistleblower to remain anonymous,” Schiff said, “and we will not allow bad-faith efforts to out this whistleblower.”

Vindman’s lawyer, Michael Volkov, said his client would not answer questions about how many people, other than State Department official George Kent, he told about concerns he had over Trump’s July 25 call with the president of Ukraine. The call, and Trump’s request for a “favor” from Ukraine are the basis of the impeachment inquiry.

Pressed repeatedly, Volkov said of his client: “Look, he came here. He tells you he’s not the whistleblower, okay? He says he feels uncomfortable about it. Try and respect his feelings at this point.”

A person then identified only as “voice” interjects: “We’re uncomfortable impeaching the president.”

Volkov then shot back: “What I’m telling you right now is you have to protect the identity of a whistleblower. I get that there may be political overtones. You guys go do what you got to do, but do not put this man in the middle of it.”

FROM A1

“It’s really been a privilege to welcome our brothers and sisters, refugees, asylum seekers and immigrants from all over the world that are facing a crisis because Jesus has asked us — it’s a gospel mandate to welcome the stranger,” said La Posada Providencia program director Sister Zita Telkamp. “As Jesus’ servants, we want to remain true to the gospel mandate.”

During the ceremony, Cameron County Judge Eddie Trevino, Jr. presented a framed proclamation to La Posada Providencia.

“Our country, I dare say, is in a very tough spot in its history and as Christians, Catholics, anybody of faith who has any compassion whatsoever for their fellow human beings, we should be very well concerned for the structure and the status of our country,” Trevino said to attendees and La Posada Providencia members. “And in spite of all of the negative and ugly rhetoric that we’ve heard over the last several years, its groups, work and dedication that you do that continues to inspire us and know that we’re still on the right path.”

Following Trevino speech, state Sen. Eddie Lucio, Jr. presented the ministry with a framed Texas flag that had been dedicated at the capital.

“It’s a family affair being here and knowing that we can count on beautiful hearts that are present to give shelter and food to the hungry, to clothe the naked and to do everything that the Lord Jesus Christ would want us to do,” Lucio, Jr. said. “This is a celebration of what I consider a beautiful example of being a good neighbor.”
